Purpose
This one day conference is designed to educate nurses, nurse practitioners, physician assistants, social workers and other allied health professionals on the latest updates in solid organ transplantation.

Objectives
1. Discuss the current medical advances and care in solid organ transplantation
2. Describe key issues in the achievement of life-long health in transplantation
3. Discuss the challenges inherent to transplantation

Continuing Education hours have been applied for through the American Board of Transplantation (ABTC hours)

ITNS and the GA Chapter ITNS

ITNS is a worldwide professional nursing organization that represents all areas of transplantation. It was founded in 1992 as a non-profit organization to promote the education and clinical practice excellence of nurses who are interested in and participating in the care of the solid organ transplant patient.

Membership to this organization is diverse, with 77% of members living in the US, 12% in Canada and 10% in Europe.

The ITNS mission is to promote excellence in transplant clinical nursing through the provision of professional growth opportunities, interdisciplinary networking and collaborative activities in nursing research.

The GA Chapter ITNS was formed in May 2004. Since its inception, the chapter has now over 200 members and growing. The goals of the chapter are:
1. To provide a network for communication among professional nurses with a focus and commitment to transplantation.
2. To provide a means of continuing education for professional nurses with a focus in transplant nursing.
3. To examine new trends in all types of transplants as it affects patient care and the clinical and functional role of the nurse.
4. To promote and support research in the field of transplant nursing.
5. To distribute the results of scientific investigations among professionals interested in the area of transplantation.
6. To foster an awareness of ongoing ethical considerations in the areas of procurement, donations and recipient selection.
7. To do all else that is necessary and proper for the accomplishment of all of the foregoing and lawful purposes and objectives of the society.

We encourage every nurse, clinician and health care professional who has an interest in transplantation to join and support our organization. For information about membership, please contact:
